A Shared Passion for Music

Anna and Evelyn Little were born into a musical family in the late 19th century. From a young age, they displayed an extraordinary aptitude for music, particularly for the mandolin. Anna, the elder sister, possessed a natural talent for composition, while Evelyn excelled as a virtuoso performer. Together, they formed an unbreakable bond that would forever shape their musical journey.

The sisters' passion for chamber music led them to explore new and innovative ways to incorporate the mandolin into their compositions. They experimented with different combinations of instruments, including the violin, viola, and cello, creating a rich and multifaceted sound that set their music apart from the norm.
