The author, Farid Ahmadi, was born and raised in Afghanistan. His childhood was filled with love and laughter, but also with the constant threat of violence. When Farid was just a teenager, his country was invaded by the Soviet Union. His family was forced to flee their home, and they spent the next several years living in refugee camps in Pakistan.

In 2001, Farid and his family were finally able to come to America. They settled in California, and Farid began to build a new life for himself. He went to school, learned English, and got a job. But even though he had found safety and opportunity in America, Farid still missed his homeland and the people he had left behind.

This book is a testament to the power of the human spirit, and it will inspire you to never give up on your own dreams, no matter how difficult the journey may be.
